'58

The Senior Class of Theodore Roosevelt
High School
Des Moines, Iowa

...presents the 1958

ROUNDUP

the students...

. . . the seniors, the juniors, the sophomores, the junior highers, the people of Roosevelt High . . . the individuals . . . the citizens of tomorrow. We have been called the restless generation, but who are we? We are the war babies of yesterday, the scientists, doctors, lawyers, husbands and housewives of tomorrow. There are 1,800 of us together now at Roosevelt High. We are a generation of identicals . . . we dress alike, we cut our hair alike, we read alike, we dance alike. But we are also a generation of individuals . . . we think differently, we have diverse tastes and distastes, goals, ambitions, and ideals. We are learners and teachers. We are filling ourselves with knowledge of the world that one day will be ours. We are 1,800 different minds and bodies; but because we are different each of us will find our place, be it as a nuclear physicist or factory worker. Yes, we are 1,800 separate and distinct personalities; but in aggregate we are one . . . we are TRHS.

. . . the architects and masterbuilders of today's learners and tomorrow's leaders . . . the tapers of the restless generation . . . the generators of America's intelligentsia . . . the expert, the ambitious, the dedicated . . . the teachers and administrators of TRHS. We at Roosevelt are proud of our teachers. We feel that some of the best in the teaching profession can be found within our walls . . . men and women who know how to teach well, and who love their work. Because of this, we consider ourselves fortunate, for upon the firm foundation laid by the Roosevelt instructors and administrators rest all the factors of our education. The TRHS teacher watches over our mental and physical growth in the classroom, in the club meeting, and on the playing field. He and she impart to each of us not only the basic knowledges of his and her field, but also the wisdoms, understandings, techniques, ideals, and virtues which are very much a part of making our learning experiences unique and rewarding. Yes, teachers are a particularly significant faction of the TRHS family, for what is education without devoted and dedicated educators?

. . . classrooms and workshops . . . homework and tests . . . lectures, discussions, reports, and projects . . . report cards, 1's, 2's, and 3's . . . the vertebrae and ribs of education. We are proud of all phases of the academic at TRHS. Concentration on English, mathematics, science, history, and language is particularly emphasized. Special classes have been set up for the advanced student in these fields, and remedial work is provided for the slower learner. Fine arts, homemaking, industrial and commercial training are not neglected, however, and TRHS has made outstanding showing in these fields. With stress on integrated curriculum and concern for individual abilities and problems, with the 3R's many times expanded, the academic aspect of TRHS is challenging and rewarding.

. . . paid assemblies . . . openhouses . . . dancing in the gyms . . . Senior Bermuda Day . . . Val-Air . . . passing period . . . morning gossip in the cafeteria . . . lunch hour . . . noon movies . . . strolls in the halls . . . jokes and laughing . . . the social life at TRHS. Going to school is not entirely a textbook, homework proposition. Many of the aspects of man's relationship to man are not learned in the classroom, but rather in the casual get-togethers of students outside the formal learning situation. Appreciation of intellect is cultivated in the classroom, appreciation of personality in the informal contacts provided by the social side of life. We at TRHS enjoy many planned social activities, along with entertainments and occupations of our own device. The atmosphere of a school is only as pleasant as the contentment of the students who go there. We at Roosevelt can study well, but we can also laugh; and when we do, it is a hearty laugh.

. . . football, basketball, swimming, wrestling . . . varsity, sophomore squads . . . after school practices . . . stench of the locker room . . . sitting on the bench . . . Drake Fieldhouse . . . "beat 'um, beat 'um, beat 'um" . . . Men of Honor . . . All-Americans . . . City championships . . . sports at TRHS. For many years Roosevelt has figured as a major sports power in the state. We have had championship teams in every field, but one; and many records have fallen before our performers. At TRHS we believe spirited athletic competition to be invaluable to physical and mental growth. Roosevelt boys sweat away many hours on the playing field; but consequently they are better young men. Sports provide a unified spirit for participants and sideliners alike. All strive for the ultimate ecstasy of victory. We at TRHS support our teams with a lung-sprung "Fight team, fight for Roosevelt," and a fervent desire of a game well-won.

THAT WERE . . .

Roosevelt High,

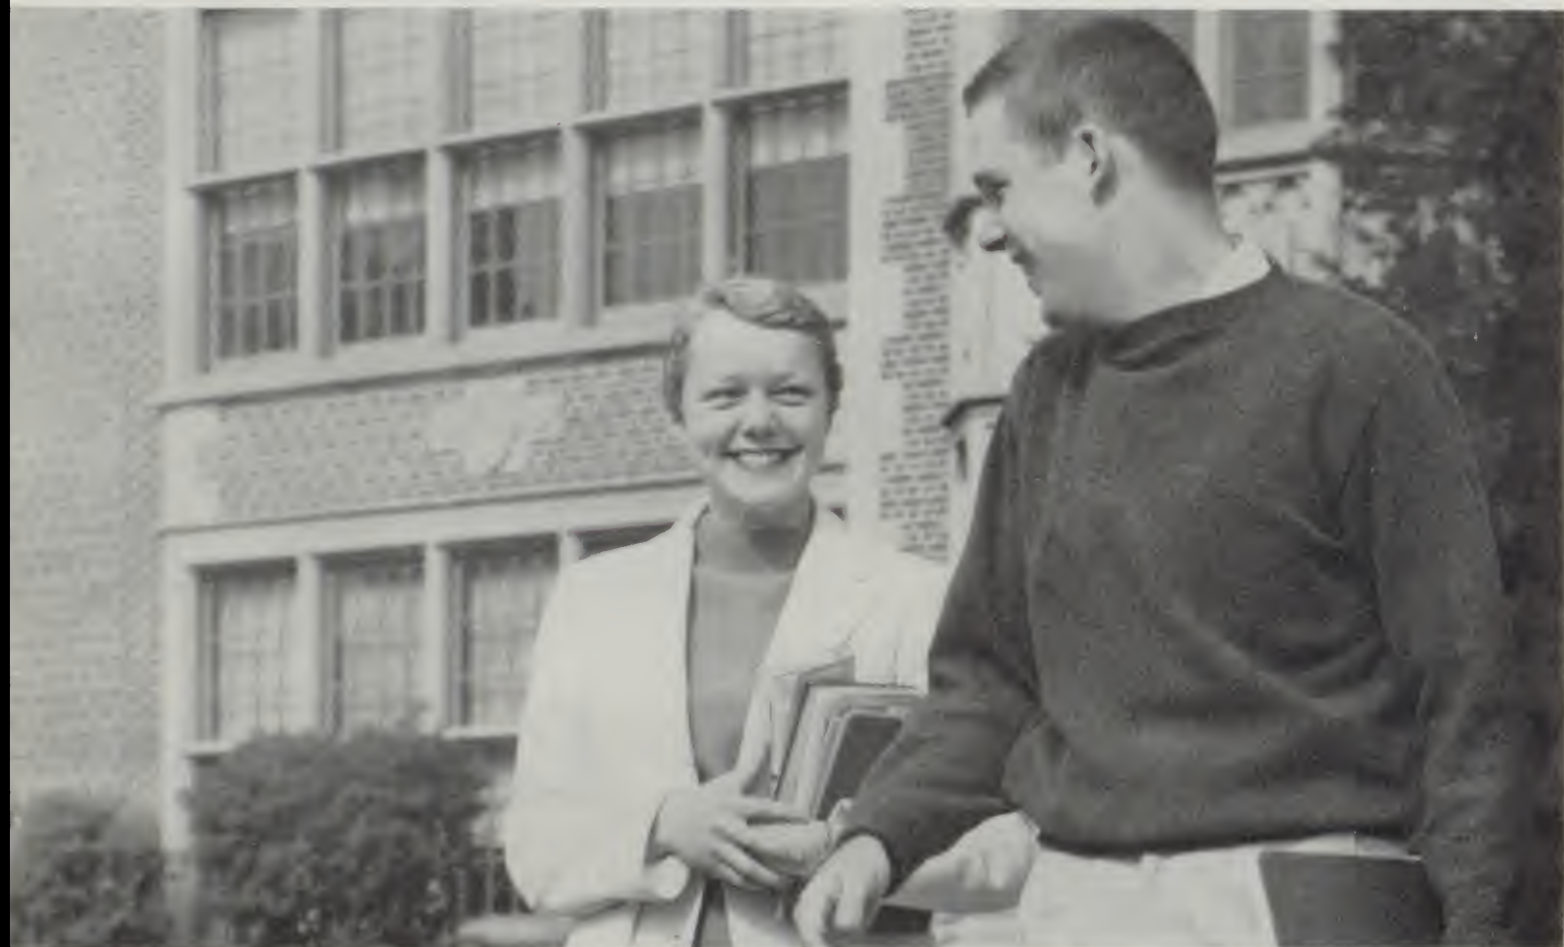

. . . the students . . . the faculty . . . the academic . . . the social . . . the athletic . . . TRHS. Roosevelt High is a school of spirit, traditions, dates, and records, industry, zeal, eagerness, and co-operation; but most important it is a school of people: of teachers and of learners. A school is not a name, or a building, or a list of dates, or records of important events; it is the spirit of its people: its teachers, its students, past and present. Anyone who has ever contributed to the school, or has ever taken anything away from the same, is TRHS. Without students and teachers and administration, Roosevelt would be a cold, lifeless, rambling building on Polk Boulevard. With them it is a wonderful part of humanity.

May we capture herein a part of the Roosevelt spirit, and record a patent testimony of the teachers and learners who peopled the classrooms, halls, and playing fields at Theodore Roosevelt High School during the nine textbook, "rah, rah team" months that fell between September 1957 and June 1958.

IN THE YEAR OF . . .

. . . 'Sputnik', Chemise, Rock 'n Roll

It was a compact year, '57-58, filled with doubts and inner qualms, an age of high spirits and confusion, of awakenings and concerns, an age of vertical progresses and vertical regressions. We will look back and we will say it was an exciting time in which to live. We will remember in ten or twenty or thirty years all of the things that made lives happy and sad, tense and confident. That October day in '57 when the Russians launched their "Sputnik." Our own satellite launchings: our Vanguards, our Atlases, our Jupiter C's. The Dodgers in Los Angeles. Ike Eisenhower and his golf game. A handsome man named Rock Hudson. The woman "God created," Brigitte Bardot. Nikita Krushchev on the Kremlin throne. The abominations officially called "La Chemise," but unofficially "the Sack." Dave Beck: "I refuse to answer on the grounds that what I would say might tend to 'incriminate' me." The "Ivy-League" look. The Republicans and their recession. Ducktail and the flattop. Summit conferences. "Big Beat" of Rock 'n Roll. Perry Como, Pat Boone, Tommy Sands. The incomparable king of the hip swivelers, Elvis. Gyrating teenagers at sock hops. Teenage violence. Teenage scientists. Yes, there will be plenty to remember, and most of the memories will be pleasant ones. But we will best be able to crystallize the age in the lingo of the day: it was "real gone," "cool, man, cool."

AND DEDICATE IT TO . . .

. . . to the 97 per cent that is—the 97 per cent of us who will one day be the good citizens and leaders of tomorrow . . . to the eggheads and athletes, the average and the gifted, the leader and the follower, we wish to dedicate this annual. We wish to dedicate it to the American teenagers—to ourselves. The American teenagers—who are we? This question is as ridiculous as querying: Who is the American middle-aged? The American teenager is not a type. The red-blooded American boy and the wholesome young bobbysoxer are not figures to be cast in a mold. As American teenagers we are individuals, with passionate likes and violent dislikes, wants and needs. We are persons tottering on a very crucial precipice of life: on one side lying the uninhibitedness of childhood; on the other the responsibilities of adulthood. We are the gifted eggheads and the intelligent normals. We realize that we are both good and bad; but we feel that there is often a tendency to confuse the two. Unfortunately the good name of the majority is often made synonymous with the actions of the infamous 3 per cent. With all the consternation today over education and delinquency, we teenagers have found ourselves cast into the spotlight of critical public opinion. Our haircuts and dances, clothes styles and dating habits, the books we read or don't read, our relationships with the opposite sex, and every other aspect of our existence are examined and criticized, condemned, but very seldom commended. In fact, some persons are ready to throw us to the dogs. "What are our children coming to?" they raise their hands in exasperation. Where are we going? To tomorrow, that's where. To be sure, we are a restless generation, but we are ourselves critical of this world we must live in; and no one need ever fear that it will dissipate in our hands. We are perhaps the most ambitious youth America has yet seen; and we must not be criticized for our ambition. A phoenix has never sprung from a fire which did not exist.

A hodge podge—that's what it is—but an organized one, and we're proud of it. Your Roundup '58 comes to you after eight months of "blood, sweat, and jeers." Some people said we couldn't do it—and we thought so ourselves a couple of times—but its presence in your hands is proof that we not only could, but did.

Last fall it was agreed by the staff that previous Roundups left room for improvement. So this year, we decided, was the time to do something about it. And we did. Picture coverage was doubled, as was the copy-written material; and even if some of the pages look a bit cramped, we feel a nearly complete record of the year is the more important result. If every TRHS personality isn't pictured at least once it's not our fault. A few names may be misspelled, but then how many of your friends can spell your name—correctly, that is?

Rattled nerves from working into the wee hours, hoarse throats from shouting people into line for pictures, dishpan hands from developers, blisters from scissor wielding, and paste under the fingernails have all gone into the production of Roundup '58. Not that there isn't room for further improvement, we are completely satisfied with the result. We hope you are, and hope also you will enjoy now and continue to enjoy for many years looking at the pictures. Look, please, at every picture; read, please, every word. We did it for you—we're glad it's finished.

FACULTY

TEACH ME, FOR I WOULD GLADLY KNOW WHY AND HOW;
TEACH ME, FOR I WOULD GLAD-LY LEARN; TEACH ME, FOR I WOULD GLADLY TEACH.

MR. DELMER H. BATTRICK

Principal

The phone rings in his office, and once again Principal Delmer H. Battrick speaks for Roosevelt High. The School Board office downtown, Dr. Harris, an inquiring employer, an anxious mother—to each and all he answers with the harmonious dignity of an effectual high school administrator.

Negotiating with Dr. Harris and the School Board, supplying employers with information on post-graduates, and lending an ear to parents is but a small part of Mr. Battrick's busy day as administrative head of this large high school. Conferences with students and fellow educators, letter writing, assembly speaking, social teas, coffees, luncheons, awards dinners, and P.T.A. meetings, public-relations counseling, and scores of less impressive tasks keep Mr. Battrick more than busy as he guides the destiny of TRHS with a skillful hand. He has been executive chief of Roosevelt since his appointment as principal four years ago, when he returned after a twelve year absence. He had served here as vice-principal from 1935 to 1942 under the administrations of J. E. Stonecipher and C. O. Hoyt.

It is difficult to capture in a picture or even in words the way a man appears to his students. But from note-laden desk to assembly podium his dimpled and ready smile, snowy hair, brisk walk and impeccable taste in clothes make Delmer H. Battrick, in our opinion, the quintessence of the high school principal.

MR. GARELD JACKSON

Vice-Principal

Boys' Advisor

"Who's next?" is a familiar sound to the boys awaiting an audience in Mr. Jackson's popular outer office. As Boys' Advisor it is Mr. Jackson's job to help Roosevelt boys solve the many problems which are prone to arise in the course of the high school day. To be sure, he is necessarily stern with the rule breakers, but he is also patient and understanding, and TRHS boys look upon him as a true friend.

Joining the TRHS staff in 1954, after teaching for three years at Lincoln High, Mr. Jackson, as vice-principal, assumes the duties of principal in Mr. Battrick's absence. He supervises the sports program here, and during the football season he was often to be seen on the sidelines, wrapped to his ears in an Indian blanket, giving encouragement to the players. Mr. Jackson also sponsors the Boys Club which meets regularly in his outer office.

You have in the picture opposite a combination of our feelings for the man. His graying hair, a trifle thin on top, his eyes sparkling like a mischievous little boy's, his I-know-something-you-don't smile, and the familiar ring of his booming voice are characteristics of an administrator liked and respected by every Roosevelt student.

MISS GRETTA WOLFE

Girls' Advisor

Being mother-away-from-mother and ready friend to nearly a thousand girls is no small task; but Miss Gretta Wolfe, Girls' Advisor here at Roosevelt, is just that, and she loves every minute of it. After fifteen years of hearing girls' problems, petitions, and ambitions Miss Wolfe might well qualify as an expert in her field.

Coming to Roosevelt in 1938, she taught home economics until her appointment as Girls' Advisor in 1943. Since that time countless numbers of girls have passed through the portals of her office; a little sadder, a little happier, but forever wiser. Besides her job as girls' counselor, Miss Wolfe also sponsors the Roosevelt Girls' Club and guides TRHS seniors on the road to graduation, co-ordinating the senior committees and supervising all senior activities.

To this pert little woman with the lovely silver hair, whose welcoming personality is known to all here at Roosevelt, we students owe our appreciation for the guidance, understanding, time, and industry she has put forth for the betterment of our school and ourselves.

MISS MARY HEGGEN
REGISTRAR

She has everyone of us at her fingertips—hidden away in the heavy-doored vault that is her office, Miss Heggen, TRHS registrar, has access to the case history of every Roosevelt student. She keeps all student records and transcripts, manages the school's functionary money affairs, is head of the office staff, and in general has a job very necessary to the smooth operation of the school day.

MISS EDITH JOHNSON
MRS. BRIDGET SWEET
NURSES

Amidst a menagerie of bottles, thermometers, throat swabs, bandages, cots, and medical smells Miss Johnson and Mrs. Sweet await ailing TRHS students in their second floor infirmary. The average day for them sees cut fingers, sprained ankles, athletic bruises, throbbing headaches, and soaring temperatures. They were particularly swamped by green-faced students during this year's Asiatic Flu outbreak.

Office Staff

Thanks to the office staff we at Roosevelt have mimeographed tests, the daily bulletin, special bulletins, and records of our absences and tardinesses. "May I help you?" is familiar address of one of above four young ladies when visitors or students venture into TRHS office. They are (l to r): Evelyn Klein, stenographer-clerk; Shirley Robinette, attendance clerk; Dona Thompson, stenographer-clerk; and part-time student typist, Rae Dean Lynn.

CUSTODIAL STAFF

Cleaning up after us, keeping us warm in winter and cool in summer, and managing to maintain the mechanical operation of TRHS on an even keel are (l to r) Eldon Harvey, Floyd Falwell, Eddie Rhodes, Carroll Devan, Lina Wilson, Floyd O'Neill, Tom Alexander, and Irvin Miller.

CAFETERIA STAFF

January Graduates

JANUARY CLASS OFFICERS—leading their class to graduation are (from l) Sandy Cook, Treasurer; Jed Groves, Vice President; Judy Petit, Girls' Representative; Kathy Woods, Secretary; Skip Andrew, President; and Dennis Lumbard, Boys' Representative.

On the evening of January 23, we seventy-nine upperclassmen of the mid-year class, 1958, were graduated from Roosevelt High. For the third time in as many days our lines filed into the TRHS auditorium; this was the last time. In pale blue gowns and private worlds of mixed emotions, we filled the first few rows of seats. During the speeches that followed, and the commencement address by Frank Miller, public relations consultant, we but half listened; memories of the past few days, of the past semester, of the past year, of the past three years paraded circus-like across our minds—memories of all the little things that had seemed so big when we were sophomores; memories of the hectic junior themes which dominated our second year; memories of the last and best year—the '57 Frolics, 'Eh!', our senior themes, our brilliant East pep assembly, our class officers elections, our class parties, our Class Day, our Baccalaureate. Then the speeches were over and class president Skip Andrew and a school board representative distributed our diplomas; we seventy-nine recessed from the auditorium, some of the girls wet-eyed; and it was all over—we, the superior seniors, were seniors no more; we had joined the ranks of TRHS graduates. Commencement night climaxed an epoch in our lives: thirteen years of public education, the last three years of which we had spent at TRHS. We had, in that time, become a part of Roosevelt, and whether we realized it or not Roosevelt had become a part of us.

JUNE GRADUATES

The senior boys propped their feet on the railing which fenced the orchestra pit and settled to watching with the discerning eye of professional critics the performers on the stage. After three years of waiting and slowly progressing from the further-most seats of the auditorium they were exercising the ancient right of seniors by adding the blessing of their feet to the silver-worn imprints of countless bygone graduates. At the backs of those fortunate few who occupied the front row seats sat over three hundred of their upperclassmates. The assembly progressed and the performers threw special remarks to the seniors who responded in their superior way. High above the assembled student body the sound-absorbing ceiling blocks may have yet borne echoes left over from earlier in the year when the pep-spouting upperclassmen had out-shouted the rest of the school with a non-objective but ear-crackling "Rah! Rah! Seniors!" The auditorium had filled in its vast heights the three year memories of these seniors, along with the memories of the 12,000 who had gone before them. It was here that they, as sophomore-B's, had assembled for their first orientation after abandoning alliances with Franklin, Callanan, and Roosevelt junior highs to become a united, interested, and loyal sophomore class of Roosevelt High School. It was here they as juniors had attended and participated in countless assemblies, ranging from the ridiculous to the religious. It was here that they as seniors had strode to the stage to receive special recognition for their participation in sports; here that they had frolicked away an enjoyable evening with their "So Rare"; here that they had watched their duly elected officers sworn in. And it was here that they would gather on a fast approaching Sunday afternoon, garbed for the first time in their cap and gown emblems, to hear the Reverend Cruikshank deliver an inspirational Class Sermon; here that they would be commended for impressive scholarship on Class Day; here, together for the last time at the graduation exercises, that they would be pardoned to the arms of Dame Fortune, the cautions and urges of Drake president and guest speaker Dr. Henry Harmon mingling with their confused emotions. The assembly was over now, the chattering seniors interspersed with their underclassmen fellows; and, when the empty auditorium was once more silent, echoes of the seniors' past three years, the happy, the excited, the solemn, and the sad, whispered up and down the hallowed aisles.

"So Rare"

SENIOR FROLICS

"So Rare," the Senior Frolics, was just that, so rare. The annual super senior variety show with a plot line, carried off amiably this spring by June Graduates and 12-B's, was written by Tom Guy and a committee of three (Sherry McMartin, Ann Strief, and Craig Lonning). Tom was also the director. The production went into a two week rehearsal before the big bonanza night, March 28. Well over one hundred seniors took part in the show, either as leads, or participants in individual skits and acts, in a singing chorus, or a dancing chorus. All in all, "So Rare" was a big, senior-type success, and gave many of June Seniors an opportunity to relax for a few moments from the tensions prior to graduation.

Authors of "So Rare" discussing their frolics script are (l to r) Sherry McMartin, Craig Lonning, Ann Strief, and Tom Guy.

ONE: White on black is used for dance routine, "Hernandos Hideaway." TWO: Dancers in motorcycle jackets satirize rock 'n roll craze for "American Grandstand." THREE: Country cousins and their fiddles are (l to r) Julie Burgardt, Martha Collins, Susan Meleher, and Marlene Harris. FOUR: "Shore Leave." FIVE: Director Guy directing the finale.

In '54 the TRHS gridders and Archie Johnson brought home the City Crown. Then came a three year slump. In '57 the TRHS gridders and Don Prior recaptured the coveted title and returned it in triumph to Center and Polk. Under the leadership of a new coaching staff, Don Prior and Vern Weidmaier, the Riders began rehearsing for the pigskin season late in August. With line blocking and backfield play shaping up, and hopes high, Prior's men experienced their first action with Fairfield on the latter's field. To everyone's surprise, the Riders had abandoned the traditional T-formation for the more powerful single wing system. What resulted was a 20-0 initial victory. The next game, with the Irish of Dowling, was held scoreless by a wet field. Victory was tasted when Tech was left in the stadium by a score of, again 20-0. Then the flu, Asiatic variety. Player illness and excessive penalties resulted in a 7-7 tie with Lincoln in a day-time game on their own field. Picking themselves up by their bootstraps, the TRHS gridmen humbled Newton, 36-0, and North, 34-6, before the first true defeat was handed them by the powerhouse Cedar Rapids Washington team, 27-12. Washington was a substitute for scheduled East, which was under with the flu. Somewhat discouraged, the Riders journeyed north to Ames, and in a cold game were defeated, 14-6. East was feeling up to par again, and the rescheduled game was played on the Drake field. Team spirit, team unity, and team desire, plus a chorus of support by TRHS fans, squelched the Scarlets' drive; and with a score of 19-0 the jubilant Rider gridmen brought home the spoils. In a victory assembly the next week Coach Prior expressed satisfaction with the team's 5-2-2 record, commenting on the unity of effort, sparked by a few outstanding performances. In closing he said, "This is only the beginning. We are starting a new era at Roosevelt." We assume Coach Prior intends to keep the City Series crown at TRHS.

COACHES

Don Prior

Vern Weidmaier

Last year Archie Johnson, whose name was synonymous with athletics here at TRHS, suffered a heart attack. Archie, head football coach of many years standing, resigned because of his illness. His successor was found in Don Prior, a determined young man who was making a name for himself and his team at Iowa Falls. Brought to Roosevelt, Prior was placed in charge of a team against whose predecessors he had played as a gridman for North of Des Moines, his alma mater. Vern Weidmaier, coach at Cedar Rapids, was acquired as Prior's right hand man. Together they adapted the junior-senior squad to a single wing attack, and consequently saw a successful season in their first year.

Junior halfback Bob Kreamer sprints through tumbling offense for a several yard gain. Kreamer's fine field performances helped spark Roughriders to city crown.

Come rain or shine they were there—in plastic scarfs and rain coats TRHS girls form arch for their football heroes to pass through onto field.

Plays cannot be executed without plans. Roosevelt gridders huddle around captain Mike Carey as he describes next play.

"We need more blocking on this end," Coach Prior seems to be saying as he confers with 217-pound captain, Mike Carey.

Hard play on the field is mirrored on faces of tense gridders waiting their turn in mud.

With victory comes triumph. Coach Prior and senior quarterback Joe Harkness are carried from field by exuberant teammates. TRHS had just trampled old foe East High 19-0 for City Title.

To victors, the spoils. Amidst shouting of an especially happy Roosevelt student body the city's crowned football kings are honored in special victory assembly.

Few coaches have championship teams in their first year at a school. Don Prior must have felt particularly proud and satisfied as he led his champs through victory arch of pompons and cheers.

SOPHOMORE FOOTBALL

Trailing in the footsteps of the varsity squad, the sophomore gridders also captured the city championship title. Two games of the six game roster, those with Dowling and Newton, were canceled because of bad weather and conflicts. Coached by Bob Anderson and Arden McClain, the boys played the remaining games like their varsity counterparts. The squad offers some good prospects for Coach Prior's '58 team.

And were we happy! After the football season and the gridders' capture of the city crown there were some persons across the city, and here at TRHS itself, who thought the chances of our winning the basketball title somewhat slim. But after eight hard-played, hard-won series games even the staunchest of skeptics had been disproved. Comito's men were the '58 City Champs of the hardwoods. A few of our games were dropped—one surprier to Tech—but when we won we did a good job of it. Toughest opponent was met in North; our first bout with the Bears ended with TRHS on top by only one slender point. Our power came from height. Average for the team was 6' 2". Outstanding players were senior veteran Dave Groth, who worked well with "little" Tommy Mason, import from New Jersey, at the guard spot; Paul Christenson, tall man under the basket; Dick Shaw and John Risser, ace ball handlers; and Jim Dunlop and Bob Kreamer who were hot with the hooks. Perhaps it was the determination and drive of Coach Al Comito, celebrating his tenth year as head basketball coach at TRHS, which sparked the Riders through the most successful season since '54.

Sophomore Basketball

Scattered in little groups across the bleachers, sophomore girls rooted the second team to the city championship for sophomore basketball. Despite the fact that the earliness of the games kept the number of fans down to a faithful few, the sophomores displayed typical Roosevelt spirit and drive, and went on winning the majority of their games (15 wins, three losses) in suiting delphic preludes to the victories which usually followed with the varsity. Height in persons of Jay Roberts and Ed Bittle proved invaluable to the squad's effectiveness. Both Ed and Jay joined the varsity tournament team at the end of the year. All in all, the coaching skill of Bob Anderson and the determination on behalf of all the boys led to a season which was a suitable follow-up to last year's record.

TRHS Tankers City Champs, State Runners-Up

Naturally. This year's swimming team's record was no surprise to anyone, least of all to Coach Clark Munger and the 23 boys on the squad. Winning is old hat for the tankers of TRHS. This year the boys bettered last year's record by one score—rather than sinking one meet, they dried off the season with a perfect record. When questioned as for a clue to their phenomenal success, one of the tankers answered: "Clark has us go sit in a corner and pretend to hate our opponent so much that we are determined to beat him—and do!" Although the whole team was effectual in performance, several individuals stood out as particularly efficient in their participation, proving invaluable to the squad; among them the members of the All-American relay team: Tom Hickerson and Dick Shepler, seniors; Dave Dwyer and Gerrit Maris, juniors. Many local records and one national one were set by the Mungermen. Although taking first place in both City and District meets, the Riders dropped to 2nd in the State meet. But with a record like they have this year, who can complain?

WRESTLING

While not impressive as a record, the four wins by TRHS's matmen represented a marked improvement from last year's one victory. In its third year here at Roosevelt, wrestling is still an up and coming sport, with growing interest among the boys. This year's team found its strength in the fine performances of Bill Turk, Dean Hansen, Bill Robinson, Steve Copple, and Mike Carey. Carey, heavyweight powerhouse, was undefeated up to his graduation in January. With Ray Langland guiding the grapplers, and the ever present TRHS drive for victory, the team's efforts will surely result in a more successful season next year.

TRACK

COACH

Arden McClain

Spring sees the Roosevelt cinder track well populated with heavy-breathing joggers in sweat suits conditioning for competition in the track season. Prior to good weather coach Arden McClain had his boys hardening the leg muscles and limbering the chest boxes by sending them charging around the TRHS halls after school each day. Many a lingering female barely escaped with her life by leaping out of the path of the stampeding, heavy-hoofed commuters. Boasting twelve returning lettermen this year's thinclads fared well when they secured the indoor track title, in part through the valiant efforts of junior Bob Kreamer, who took the homeward stretch on a broken ankle and was consequently out of action the rest of the season. Then followed the TRHS city track meet victory with the Riders racking up a total of 54 2/5 points to bring home the title. In the Drake Relays competition the Roosevelt speedsters took first place in the two mile relay. The rest of the season was rounded out with the Riders in best form.

Fall 1957 saw the return to Roosevelt after many years' absence of fall track, better known in sports circles as cross country. About ten boys reported for practice at the beginning of the season, several of whom had been track letter winners the previous spring. Track coach William Houser took over the coaching responsibilities. Top harriers for the season proved to be junior miler Hank Woods, and senior half-milers Dick McKee, Jack Stephens, and Chuck Darby. They were paced by Don Corbin, senior; Dick Talcott, junior; and Conrad Kent, sophomore. The season ended with the cindermen tying East for a second place in the City Series competition. Satisfaction with the team's all-round performances was expressed by Coach Houser when he tacked a "Well Done" on the athletic bulletin board.

The baseball season at TRHS officially begins when coach Al Comito puts away the basketball and dons his training togs. However, several of the boys who made the squad had begun practicing on their own time several weeks before the baseball season opened. This year the squad was made up of many seniors, a few juniors, and a couple of sophomores. Occasionally a sophomore boy is good enough to make the varsity team; but most sophomores remain on the sophomore or second team, which was coached this year by Don Prior. All-City holdovers, pitcher Dave Groth and second baseman Gary Johnson were instrumental in sparking the team to victory. Fine performances were turned in also by seniors Frank Burnette, Joe Harkness, and Jack Bennett, and juniors Tom Langman, Dan Pendegraft, Larry McPheeters, and Rick Olsen.

Tennis is one of the two top competitive sports that TRHS girls can take part in alongside the athletic males. Roosevelt girls have consistently made expert showings in their matches, and last fall they brought another city competition title home to the TRHS trophy cases. The team won by netting Lincoln with nine points. Kay Wygren was chosen captain. Each of the girls on the squad, which is coached by Norma Becker, has one letter.

This year, the male netmen fell behind the record set by their female counter-parts, losing the Fall Tournament last fall for the first time in eight years. Coach Izac Emrich had four returning lettermen in Vilnis Ozols, Jerry Whitlock, Lester Pearl, and Mark Conkling.

Two more city titles were enrolled in the Roosevelt record book when the boys' and girls' golf teams took first place in the fall tournament competition. This was hardly a surprise to anyone though, as girls haven't lost a city meet in a good long time and the boys have a string of 10 successive wins to their credit. In fact, winning has become such a habit with the TRHS linkmen that golf victories are practically unsung around Roosevelt. The teams went into spring competition with stars Judy Sparks, Polly Gerhart, Ron Tallman, and Jim Hoffer in top shape. The outlook for success was naturally good, and coach Clark Munger expected only the best from both of his squads.

FALL SEMESTER

"The meeting will come to order. Let us rise and repeat the Lord's Prayer . . ." So began President Dave Groth at the start of each council meeting in 201 during the first hour of each Tuesday of the fall semester. Under the guidance of our elected officers we homeroom representatives made this session of the student council a productive one. In the course of the semester scores of problems crossed our agenda. Among the more outstanding were a Student Court jurisdictional amendment to the Constitution; compilation of a student telephone directory; initiation of a C. O. Hoyt citizenship award; moves to improve traffic and parking problems around school; and a new attempt to establish an all-city student council.

SPRING SEMESTER

Placards and posters papered the halls and walls: "So And So For Pres," "Don't Forget—So And So For Sec," "Elect So And So 1st VP." Nominating speeches filled the air: "And the obvious choice for president is your candidate and mine . . ." "It is my pleasure to present your next secretary . . ." Election time around TRHS is one of the busiest times of the year. This Spring, a new slate of officers, headed by Harlan Johnston, took over the student council reins. Many new faces were seen among the home room representatives as well. Business for the most part was carried over from the previous semester, but outstanding highlight was Roosevelt's playing host to the South Central District Conference held at Drake University in April.

BOYS CLUB

Although many Roosevelt boys didn't realize it, we all were members of this year's Boys Club. As in past years, the club centered its program around promoting activities for all boys in the school. Guiding these activities were Mr. Jackson, Sponsor; Tom Hickerson, President; Dave Groth, Vice-President; Bill Tschudy, Secretary; and Bob Kreamer, Treasurer. These officers, elected in the spring of '57, joined with representatives of different service groups to form an activities council. Planning our activities was the main function of the council, which replaced the board of homeroom representatives used in previous years. Working with Girls Club in sponsoring Newcomers Club, showing a fund-raising movie, "The King and I", holding an intramural basketball tournament, sponsoring Dads' Night for all boys and their fathers, and presenting leadership certificates at an awards assembly in the spring were the most significant of these activities. Some of the money earned through the projects was spent purchasing a set of five college entrance books for the counseling offices and giving a needy family help at Christmastime. We contributed our time, too, by serving as assistants in the Boys' advisor's office. When the year was over, we felt that it had been a very successful one for service and for fun.

It was a small group that made most of our Girls Club plans last year, but nearly all Roosevelt girls played some part in its activities. All senior high girls belonged to the club, and its chief purpose was to serve each one of them. Among other purposes were service to the school and the community through projects organized by Miss Wolfe, Sponsor; Sally Blanchard, President; Jerri Brown, Vice President; Cynthia Austin, Secretary; and Mary Skidmore, Treasurer. These officers, the chairman of each of several committees, and representatives from each grade and each home-room comprised the cabinet that made most of the decisions concerning the activities. Ideas for a style show, a foreign students' assembly, visits to the Convalescent Home and Home for Sightless Women, decorations at Blank Hospital, pep clubs, 10-B teas, the pal system, favors for teachers on May Day and Christmas, decorations for the halls, and the spring installation and mother-daughter tea all originated in the cabinet and were carried out by the various committees. The only project in which all committees participated was the fund-raising Spinster Spree. This fall dance, to which the girls asked the boys, had a western theme this year which was carried out in its decorations and entertainment. While the Spree was probably the highlight of our Girls Club year, we'll always remember the service projects as some of the most wonderful experiences of our high school careers.

Sharks Club

"The ol' swimming hole weren't never like this"—Sharks (l to r) Mary Metcalf, Sharon Hamill, Sue Beisel, Marcia Munger, and Ann Strief, go in for dip.

The big night had arrived! We Sharks, clad in swimming suits and nerves, awaited the first of our annual pageant. Finally, the show started. Its theme, "Through the Year," included acts representing each of the twelve months. The acts that stood out as especially memorable were the February valentine number, for which we borrowed boys from the swimming team; the June number, in which Jackie Cole and Mary Metcalfe performed solos; and the December finale, in which the entire club formed a Christmas star with lighted candles. When our pageant was over, we still had many things to do. There were swimming classes to be taught; there was the pageant profit to be spent for pool improvements; and there were Minnow tryouts and installation. Each semester we took in enough Minnows to fill the places of graduates (8 the first semester, 10 the second). These girls had auditioned for our sponsor, Miss Becker, and fulfilled membership requirements, but they weren't considered full-fledged Sharks until their installation. Soon after the dinner, elections were held. And then, Sue Beisel, President; Ann Strief, Vice President; Joy Ann Wolfe, Secretary; and Brenda McPheeters, Treasurer, took over the offices that Bev Kelso, President; Cindie Tschudy, Vice President; Mary Erickson, Secretary; and Martha Glomset, Treasurer, had held first semester.

GIRLS LEADERS

Costumed in white shorts and shirts, several of us gym leaders blew our whistles and called the girls' gym class to order. With the class standing at attention, we checked attendance, made several announcements, and began leading exercises. Then, with this done, we organized a basketball game. Our responsibilities from then on were refereeing the game, keeping it organized, and making sure that all the girls had an opportunity to play. In doing all this, we were performing our chief duties as Leaders and helping our sponsor, Miss Becker. We had all been selected as members of the club on the basis of skills and written tests. Following our acceptance, we had not been recognized immediately as Leaders but served as Lowlies until the end of the semester when an installation ceremony was held. We were active in the club, even as Lowlies, however. Besides leading classes, we attended play-days at North and Tech and helped organize after-school basketball and baseball tournaments for the senior high girls. And we helped elect our officers, too. First semester we chose Sherry McMartin, President; Toni Throckmorton, Vice-President; Brice Davis, Secretary; and Aldeane Comito, Treasurer. Judy Bishop, President; Susie Lamoureux, Vice-President; Cynthia Austin, Secretary; and Liz Dwight, Treasurer, were second-semester officers.

BOYS LEADERS

Steve Ummel, Don Butterfield, Dave Lee put balls away after a gym period as part of their duties as boys Leaders.

Hurriedly pulling on our T-shirts marked "Leader," we rushed into the boys' gym and began our duties as boys' gym assistants. Mr. Anderson and Mr. Munger, our sponsors, had chosen us on the basis of our ability and interest in sports, and our qualities of leadership at the beginning of the semester to help with the gym classes. Some of us were participants in school athletics; but for others of us, this was our only chance to contribute to the sports program of the school. We were not an organized club: we had no dues, no officers, no meetings. Our group had been established only two years before for the sole purpose of helping Mr. Anderson and Mr. Munger, just as we were doing now. At the beginning of the period, we assisted with the attendance and other book-work. Then we began to lead the boys in their warm-up calisthenics. Finally the class was organized into teams and a game begun. We had charge of refereeing and keeping order—a big job sometimes, for it wasn't easy to maintain the attention of a large group of boys. But our efforts were well-rewarded, for we knew we were helping not only Misters Anderson and Munger, but the boys and the school as well.

There we were, all 24 Riderettes, ready for the first football game of the '57 season. White cowboy hats and boots and blue fringed skirts and vests were our costumes, which, like our name, were in keeping with the school nickname, Riders. We were all juniors or seniors, and we had all been selected as Riderettes by a committee of band officers and faculty on the basis of our marching, rhythm, dancing, posture, and carriage. After our acceptance as members, we had practiced every morning with our director, Mr. Bagley, to perfect marching and dancing fundamentals and to learn our positions in band formations. Because our chief purpose was to add color and motion to the half-time formations at the games, many of our rehearsals coincided with band practices. Now, with several weeks of practice behind us, we were at the game. We sat in two rows on either side of the band, and whenever a school song was played, we stood up and performed our dance routines with the huge, blue-and-white pompons we had made. When half-time came, we marched onto the field with the band and performed for the first time. It was then, at the game, that we realized how worthwhile all our mornings of practice had been.

"For the cause of the blue and the white . . ." the Riderettes attended every home football game this year—strutting their stuff at halftime and cheering from the sidelines.

CHEERLEADERS

Until this year we had the distinction of being one of the few all-boy cheerleading squads in the State. But because there were only two boys left from last semester and no more tried out, the squad was opened to girls for the first time this fall. The response was tremendous when tryouts were announced. Of the more than 100 girls that had signed up, only 20 remained after a long series of auditions and practices. When these finalists led cheers before the student body at a pep assembly, three regulars and three alternates were chosen by a group of students and faculty judges. Then, with the girls outnumbering the boys three to one, we began to practice with our sponsor, Mr. Houser. We met regularly once a week and rehearsed double time before the big games. With the help of other students, we learned many new cheers and chants. We taught them first to the pep clubs and then to the entire student body, which received them enthusiastically. As the sports season progressed, the pep assemblies and games where we led cheers became more and more spirited, and we realized that this had been a successful year for cheerleaders, boys and girls, at TRHS.

MAJORETTES

A gray 7:40 A.M., and six majorettes ready to begin another season of marching and twirling at Roosevelt. We had been chosen by a faculty-student committee on the basis of our twirling, appearance and poise, marching, and posture. Because none of us had graduated the previous June and we had no new members, we were accustomed to each other at the first of the year and could work, even then, as a team. But we still needed many rehearsals, as our director, Mr. Bagley, told us. And so we began coming to school at 7:40 A.M. on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays. Because our purpose was to assist the band in marching routines and add color to its performance, our rehearsals coincided with theirs. This meant that our twirling routines had to be practiced at some other time so as not to interfere with the marching. But we didn't mind. It took only one performance at a football game to show us that all our struggles and all our rehearsals were well-worth the effort. Being a TRHS majorette was an honor and a thrill.

NEWSPAPER STAFFS

Fall Semester

As usual, the mid-year Roundup staff was somewhat diminutive in size at the outset of the semester. But small size was no handicap to us, at least not after we had borrowed several journalism I students to pad our ranks. After learning how to work well together as an effectual unit, we put out some issues which we thought were pretty good. Quentin Miller wrote a witty column, and Dennis Forbes' cartoons and caricatures livened up page two. Sandy Povall was our Editor, and Jill Shaeffer our Business Manager.

Slave drivers for fall semester were Jill Shaeffer (seated), managing editor, and Sandy Povall, editor-in-chief.

Every two weeks the Roundup reaches the hands of the student body. News organ of TRHS, the Roundup is the result of efforts by students in second semester journalism. Usually six pages in length, it contains news of the school, including club reports, student council business, athletic coverage, and feature items. We students who have Activities Books receive our papers free. The Roundup is sent to all parts of the country.

SPRING SEMESTER FIRST HALF

The first half of the spring semester was over and our journalism class had to give up the Roundup, the newspaper it had been publishing for four issues. So many students had elected journalism for the semester that they could not possibly have worked on the same staff. To settle the problem, each of the two classes was given nine weeks to publish the paper and nine weeks to conceive a new school magazine. Now that it was our turn to take over the magazine publication, we decided that our biggest job would be trying to improve on the issue already produced in April by the other class. With this in mind, Mr. Haley appointed Caryl Pearlman editor; Connie McBurney, associate editor, and Reva Grund, business manager. We spent the rest of the year producing the second issue of "Shadows."

SPRING SEMESTER SECOND HALF

When we discovered that our journalism class would only be able to publish the Roundup for the last nine weeks of the semester, we were somewhat disappointed. But when we began planning a school magazine, we became so occupied with it that we forgot all about the paper. Learning how to write magazine stories, organizing a staff, and financing the publication were the most significant of our many tasks. If it hadn't been for the management of Jared Stein, editor; Jane Langerack, associate editor, and Bill Turk, business manager, "Shadows" might never have been published. As it was, we completed our work and were ready for our newspaper responsibilities by mid-term.

ON STAGE AT TRHS...

"Our Hearts Were Young and Gay"

FALL PLAY

Madcap mixture of seasickness, comedy, love, and slapstick took over the Roosevelt stage last fall, when the Drama Department presented Cornelia Otis Skinner's autobiographical comedy, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." The light plot provided many moments of laughter. Concerned with the adventures of young Miss Skinner and her friend, Emily Kimbrough, the story traces the sophisticatedly unsophisticated encounters of the girls with measles, bedbugs, seasickness, doting mothers, and amorous young doctors. Michaelleen Gholson did a commendable performance as the dramatic Miss Skinner, and Judi Yocum was exceptionally fine as Emily Kimbrough. The production was staged and directed by Roger Anderson.

"TEAHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON"

SPRING PLAY

Most ambitious undertaking of the drama department since the '56 production of "Oklahoma," this spring's professional adaptation of the Broadway hit, "Teahouse of the August Moon," will certainly be remembered by all who saw it, for the intricate scenery, elaborate costumes, and superb acting. The humorous story deals with the problems of occupation in post-war Okinawa, and the attempt to instruct the natives in the principles of democracy. Everything goes wrong for the hero, a Captain Fisby, when a teahouse is built instead of a schoolhouse. Jim Boerlin portrayed a fine Fisby. Other outstanding performances were turned in by Cameron Hendershot as Colonel Purdy, Jerry Stein as Captain McLean, Linda Rosenberg as Lotus Blossom, and Steve Wolfe who stole the show with his characterization of Sakini the interpreter.

CHRISTMAS PLAY

Annually a special Christmas assembly is held for the student body, and a depiction of the religious theme is presented. This year it was the "York Nativity." The story covered the familiar narration prior to and following the birth of Christ, with the Annunciation, the shepherds, and the Wise Men three. Michaelen Gholson served as dramatic narrator, Cameron Hendershot played the carpenter, Joseph, and Sara Curtis the Virgin Mary. Jerry Stein did a convincing job in his portrayal of the black-hearted Herod.

BAND

"Left, right, left, right," we chanted as we marched up and down the field early one morning during band practice. It was football season, and we were practicing three mornings a week before school as well as every other day in class in order that we could give half-time demonstrations at the games. Much of our time was spent marching and practicing formations, but there was music to be rehearsed, too. This rush to learn routines continued until the end of the season, but under our director, Mr. Bagley, we somehow always managed to be ready for the games. But even when football season was over there were many things to do. There were Iowa State College's Homecoming parade, the winter festival, and, for the pep band, the basketball games. Second semester there were still other performances. We shared a half-hour KRNT-TV program with the Boys' Glee Club, played for the Iowa Bandmasters Clinic Festival, participated in the spring concert, and presented numbers for students at an all-school assembly. Marching, too, was begun in rehearsal for the Drake Relays parade and the Armed Forces Day parade. It was a big schedule, but the band, with 95 members second semester, was a big band.

ORCHESTRA

There was a moment of discord as our orchestra concertmistress, Marlene Harris, raised her violin and we began to tune our instruments. But soon the tuning was over, the cameras were ready, and we were ready to begin our KRNT-TV performance. During the 15 minutes we were given to perform, we played a variety of classical and semi-classical music chosen by our director, Mr. Bagley. The music was somewhat more difficult than we had played before because our group had more members and was more active than it had been for some time. We had the opportunity of making performances away from school for the first time, too. As well as the television program, we played for the Women's Club and the Rotary Club second semester. Our school performances included participation in the Winter Concert, Spring Concert, two school plays, two commencement programs, and an all-school assembly. For several of us, the All-State Orchestra offered an opportunity to perform with a larger, more select group. Six of the eight from Roosevelt who auditioned for this group were accepted. Through all of our activities, the whole orchestra could see that it was taking its place as one of the most important music groups in the school.

CONCERT CHORUS

With our bright blue robes flung over our arms, we Concert Chorus members boarded a bus and headed toward downtown Des Moines. We were on our way to a Women's Club meeting, just one of the many places where we sang during the year. We had also been to a Teachers' Convention, two junior high schools, the Rotary Club, and a Women's Kiwanian group, a district student council rally and had performed on KRNT-TV. Our performances at Roosevelt included a PTA program, a performance with Chicago's Salvation Army Band, the spring concert and participation in the Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter Assemblies. We were always glad to sing for a group because we felt that our ability and self-confidence improved through every performance. Nothing, of course, helped us as much as steady, concentrated practice every other day in class and every Wednesday before school. The fact that we were a select group that had auditioned for membership didn't decrease our need for rehearsals. To the 16 of us who auditioned for All-State Chorus, this meant even more time spent practicing music. But our efforts were repaid when twelve of us were accepted into the Chorus. And the efforts of the whole group were repaid when even our director, Miss Duncan, said "Good job!"

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

"Man!" was the exclamation as we looked at fellow Boys' Glee Club members. Our new, powder-blue dinner jackets had just arrived, complete with navy blue bow ties, handkerchiefs, and feather boutonnieres. There had been an increased interest in the Glee Club at the end of the first semester, and when our director, Miss Duncan, discovered that she had a bigger and better group than she had had for several years, the idea of the jackets originated. Up until that time, our only performance had been the previous semester for the winter concert. But now we had an added incentive to sing well, we really began to practice during our class periods every other day. When we had perfected several numbers, we began making public appearances. First we sang for an assembly at school, and later performed for Franklin Junior High, the Parole Board, and on KRNT-TV in a half-hour program with the band. We are proud of our new jackets and our increased numbers this year, and hope, with Miss Duncan, that the group will continue progressing next year.

GIRLS GLEE CLUB

Dressed in our white blouses and navy skirts, we anxiously awaited the most important Girls' Glee Club performance of the year. It was time for the annual Girls Club installation ceremony, and we were going to sing for it. Our program consisted of three selections, and it seemed to be well-received by everyone. We were glad of this, because we had spent a class period every other day during the year practicing. Our other performances were at the Winter Concert, the Spring Concert, and an all-school assembly. How Miss Duncan, our director, could organize us for these performances was remarkable, because the club was made up of two separate classes that rarely had the opportunity to rehearse together. In previous years, there had been only one Glee Club, but so many girls elected the course this year that it had to be divided. Those of us who had sung in the larger group in other semesters agreed that the experience and individual attention we received in the smaller groups was invaluable, and definitely outweighed the inconveniences of the situation.

"Bon jour, mon ami," and "Ici on parle francais" filled the room as we began another French Club meeting. Because we were all French students trying to learn more about the language we were studying, we made it a point to speak some French at all our meetings and to discuss problems we had encountered during our studies. We were also trying to learn more about France and her customs. Following the informal discussion at this meeting, Marilyn Hockenbergh showed her slides and spoke to us about her trip to Europe. Other programs consisted of French games, French speakers, or discussions led by our sponsor, Mrs. Gaulke, about anything pertaining to French. One of our most enjoyable meetings was the picnic that closed the year's activities, and one of our most important projects was the presentation of an act in the Pan-American Day assembly. To organize all these activities, we elected Marilyn Mauritz president, Katy Dennis vice-president, and Beth Kesterson secretary-treasurer. Before beginning the year, these officers agreed that the main object of the French Club during the year would be to increase its members' interest in French language and culture. When the year was finished, they agreed that they had fulfilled this purpose well.

SPANISH CLUB

"Hola, señoritas!" said our sponsor, Senor Briseno, as he walked into our Spanish Club meeting after school one evening. Because we were all studying Spanish and trying to improve our speaking ability, we listened eagerly to his greeting and the phrases that followed. The program was soon turned over to a Drake student who told us of his native Mexico. Through this program and others where we had had cha-cha lessons and heard from Mexican travelers, we were trying to learn more about the countries whose language we were studying. Much of our time, too, was spent planning a Mexican fiesta and a Pan-American Day program. The first of these was held February 11 in the school cafeteria for Spanish students from Roosevelt and other schools. Although we spoke only Spanish throughout the Mexican meal and talent program, the room was filled with gay chatter. On Pan-American Day, April 11, we sold enchiladas, coffee and Mexican hot chocolate in the halls and featured singers, dancers, and instrumental solos in an assembly. All of our programs and projects were organized under the direction of Belinda Price and Alice Jacob, first and second semester presidents; Judy Petit and Linda Newman, vice-presidents; Caryl Pearlman and Jane Langerak, secretaries; and Blondell Winston and Sophie Pargas, treasurers.

FUTURE

The room was filled with quietly excited girls, if such a thing is possible; the only sound that could be heard was the voice of the doctor narrating a film on plastic surgery. The ordinary layman observer would have found the movie technically dull, but we were fascinated by it. We were members of the Future Nurses Club, and seeing such visual aids was just one of the many things we have done during the year to broaden our knowledge of nursing as a career. While we all have not yet decided to become nurses, we all have considered the opportunity of a nursing career and have tried to reach a decision through this program. But while we have attempted to learn, we have served, as well. Some of us have helped our sponsor, Miss Johnson, by serving as nurse's monitors during our study periods. Many of our group have gone to Blank Hospital on Saturday mornings to supervise playroom activities, while others have helped the American Cancer Society with its projects and campaigns. Probably the most active participants in these club projects have been our officers. Fall semester they were Marianne Field, president; Joellen Moore, vice president; Jean Bullard, secretary-treasurer; and Judy Simpson, corresponding secretary. Spring semester, Sharon Miller, president; Ann Stouffer, vice president; Miriam Osburn, secretary-treasurer; and Sharon Kay Barker, corresponding secretary, took over.

FUTURE TEACHERS

"I chose teaching as a career because . . ." began three Roosevelt teachers as they spoke to our Future Teachers Club meeting one week. They went on to explain their reasons, which seemed to coincide with our own reasons for wanting to teach. We had not all decided to become teachers, but we were at least considering the educational field and trying to learn more about it through our club activities. These included a film concerning teaching qualifications and a talk by the state president of Future Teachers of America. Three all-city meetings that were especially helpful were a Prospective Teachers Day at Drake, a rally at North, and a picnic on our campus. But perhaps more helpful than any of the meetings was the actual classroom experience we received. By assisting in classes, helping teachers with filing, and correcting tests, we gained an insight into the profession at the same time as we were serving. Miss Cain and Mr. Wetter sponsored our club and our officers made most of the plans for it. These officers were, first semester: Sally Blanchard, president; Anne Anderson and Mariel Neu, vice-presidents; Sandy Howard, secretary; Katy Peterson, treasurer; and Diana Dair, historian; second semester: Sally Blanchard, president; Jean Mack and Sharon Lutjen, vice-presidents; Jo Clark, secretary; Sandy Howard, treasurer; and Laura McCollum, historian.

Officers and members of Future Teachers Club work out a schedule for future programs with their sponsor Miss Ethel Cain.

DRAMATICS CLUB

It was early September, and we listened eagerly to plans concerning the formation of a Dramatics Club. Some of us had talked earlier with our prospective sponsor, Mr. Anderson, about combining the Make-Up and Costume Club members with students interested in other aspects of the theater. He had approved of the idea, and now the club was organizing. As prospective members, we were told that we would have to fill out applications describing our past dramatic experiences before we could join. When the membership was determined, we elected Jim Boerlin president, Mary Phillips secretary-treasurer, and Kathy Jones program chairman. We then drew up a constitution and began to meet regularly, keeping in mind that our purpose was to increase Roosevelt students' interest in drama and to further our own knowledge of the theater. We had our student teacher from Drake speak to us, invited other speakers to come, and gave play scenes and readings ourselves to our fellow members. By the time the spring came, we were well enough organized that we could help on and off stage with the play, "Teahouse of the August Moon." But by far the most important thing we did was to initiate an organization that would be of service to students for many years to come.

SCRIBBLERS

CLUB

The creative writing process—Scribblers listen to Ravel's dramatic Bolero and then write mood pieces from its inspiration.

It was a typical Scribblers Club meeting, and we were listening intently as one of our fellow members read his original composition. When he finished we began to comment on his work. The most helpful suggestions came from Miss Brody, the club sponsor, but we all praised the strong points and criticized the weak. We knew that the reader was grateful for all the suggestions, because we had each been required to read at least one of our own short stories, poems or essays during the semester and we realized that the purpose of Scribblers Club is to help us increase our creative writing ability. When four or five others had read their manuscripts, we all began to write extemporaneously as a musical recording was played. Earlier in the year we had written with a given topic such as "noses" or a contemporary painting as background, and now we were writing to music. These special sessions had been planned and organized by the officers elected each semester. Elayne Rotkow, president; Bob Epstein, vice-president; Julie Hartoft, secretary; and Sarah Haskins, treasurer, served during the first semester. Marlene Harris, president; Martha Collins, vice-president; Linda Coon, secretary; and Julie Hartoft, were second-semester officers.

At four o'clock the cafeteria buzzed with the excitement of a Bridge Club meeting. "One heart," "I pass," and "We'll never make game!" were but a few of the comments heard as we senior girls held our biweekly meeting. Mr. Webber, our sponsor, could be seen going from table to table giving instructions to beginners and describing techniques to more advanced players. Most of us had mimeographed sheets beside us which explained bidding, rebidding, scoring, and other points. When our fellow members offered suggestions, we listened. Through these means we were all either learning to play bridge or to improve our playing ability. We had no special speakers, no planned programs; we only wanted to play bridge. We knew that we would want to play a great deal after we graduated, and this seemed like the best time to learn. Later on in our meeting refreshments were served, but they were only secondary to the game. Organization was not of great importance, either, but we did need officers. First semester we elected Kay Campbell, president; Maribeth Larson, vice-president; JoAnn Scribner, secretary; and Leda Papanastassiou, treasurer. Elaine Yamasaki, president; Carole Olsen, vice-president; Sue Arthur, secretary; and Jackie Ives, treasurer, took over the responsibilities second semester.

Math-Science Club

Math-science enthusiasts (r) give their attention to club president, senior Bob Jester (below) aspiring TRHS scientist, as he lectures to them on dimension and relativity theories at regular club meeting.

Math and science enthusiasts of Roosevelt were off again on another field trip. This time we Math-Science Club members were touring the Armstrong Rubber Company; but it was only one of many trips we had made during the year to increase our knowledge of mathematics and science. Other interesting things we saw included the observatory at Drake, an electronic device called a synchrotron at Iowa State College, Ames, and the IBM machines at Bankers Life. These tours were arranged by our officers: Bob Jester, president; Art Roberts, vice president; Donna Anderson, secretary; and Lynne Berhow, treasurer. These officers also planned our regular meetings after school, at which many of the programs were presented by club members. Because we had studied or were still studying some advanced math or science, each of us was qualified to give detailed reports and make scientific observations before the entire group. We also worked together on special projects, which this year included buying a generator for the physics department, selling physics and chemistry handbooks, and participating in the Junior Academy of Science and the Science Fair. When we completed our year's program, we agreed with our sponsor, Mr. Kirkpatrick, that we had broadened our own knowledge and had given service to the school during the nine academic months of '57-'58. Sputnik and the Russians had nothing over us.

Putting our heads together around a radio receiver one Tuesday after school, we Ham Club members listened intently to a crackling voice coming in. Where was this ham from? Mexico? Our purpose as a club was to increase our knowledge of short-wave radios and to combine our efforts in order to reach ham operators all over the world. We had heard from far-away states at nearly every meeting, but it was a little more unusual to talk to someone from a foreign country such as the gentleman on the other end of the receiver. Some of the boys that stood by as we talked had learned practically everything they knew from club meetings; membership was open to anyone who was interested, and many who met this qualification didn't own licenses of their own. As the semester progressed, we advised the boys and tried to help them get licensed. Another of our goals was to buy a transmitter and receiver for the school so we wouldn't have to carry our own sets back and forth every week. This last project was not completed, but through the guidance of our sponsor, Mr. Wetter, we felt we had managed to fulfill our other purposes well. Much of the credit for the successful year went to our officers, John Herron and Fred Minnis, first and second semester presidents; Fred Minnis and Jim Smith, vice-presidents; Dave Morton and John Heldridge, secretaries; Jim Smith and Joe Cruikshank, treasurers; and John Golden and John Herron, program chairmen.

We were all amazed. Here, in only the second year at Camera Club's organization, we had 15 active members, each seriously interested in photography. Furthermore, the members all seemed to be enthused about beginning the year's program. The first thing we did was elect George Bartlow president, Alan Miller vice-president, and Tom Fugate secretary-treasurer. A regular meeting time was then arranged with our sponsor, Mr. Morrison, and programs were planned. Among the interesting things we did during the year, a demonstration of medical photography, a photo contest, and a tour through the Register and Tribune photography department stand out as the most significant. Several of our meetings were spent in informal discussions about photography, and many others were utilized at working in the new TRHS dark room, installed just this year for our use. One of our biggest projects was processing the teachers' pictures for the annual, which had been taken by our treasurer, Tom Fugate, and also the photography for the newspaper and annual. To pay for the dark room and enlarger, and other essential equipment needed for these projects, we found it necessary to charge all members a 50c initiation fee and 25c dues each month. But because we were all so interested in improving darkroom techniques and increasing our photographic abilities, we didn't mind the dues and thought only of the advantages Camera Club was providing for us, and indirectly for the school.

A big decision now lies before you—join the armed forces . . . get a job . . . go to college? The folks at Mill Owners Mutual wish you every success in whatever you choose to do.

Before making that important decision it will pay you to investigate the vast opportunities in Mutual Insurance. A booklet available through our company, "CLOSE-UP OF A CAREER", briefly outlines the many fields NOW open to you in this profession.

If you plan to attend college, you will also find this booklet an excellent guide in selecting your curriculum. Why not send for your free copy . . . or visit the home office.
